The Pathway to a Beautiful "Garden of Roses"

"INDEPENDENCE DAY"
A gem among new Roses

IF THERE is one flower on earth that can truly interpret all of the various inward feelings of human beings, or that can fully satisfy their peculiar desires made necessary by circumstance or custom, "THE ROSE" is certainly that flower. "The Bridal Bouquet," "the Corsage adornment," "the banquet table decoration," "the Beau Brummel boutonniere," "the Message of grief and sympathy with the bereaved," are instances where the Rose is called upon to fulfil a purpose in which no other flower can succeed so well—its uses are manifold the world over.

But it is not of the individual flower we desire to speak now. We want to talk about "Roses"—Hybrid Teas, Hybrid Perpetuals, Single Roses, Moss Roses, Pernet's Hybrids, Climbing Roses, and all the other exquisite forms that combine so delightfully when correctly chosen and placed, to form that "Wonderful Garden of Roses" that is the ambition of every home owner. A place where one finds happiness, beauty and quiet rest—a little haven of fragrant solitude—a minute's walk from one's doorstep—an eternity from turmoil.

Let us show you how such a Rose garden is created—let us advise you of the most desirable and dependable kinds to plant! Let us tell you of the wonderful new kinds that we have to offer you this year, and how they are budded on an especially vigorous, hardy stock that produces an all-summer supply of giant blooms, and withstands the rigors of our whimsical and unrelenting winters.

Among these newer kinds we might mention here "Independence Day," a grand variety combining the most delicate shades of flame, apricot and old gold. "Chas. K. Douglas," velvety crimson and brilliant scarlet. "President Wilson," a rich shrimp-pink shade, and the sensational, new, golden-yellow Rambler "Emily Gray."

These are but a few of the many uncommon kinds that are included in our concise list of the choicest American-grown Roses available today. All have been carefully chosen solely for their unquestionable merits.

To those who contemplate planting Roses this year, we offer expert advice in deciding what to plant; if choices have already been made we will gladly give our approval or other suggestions on lists submitted to us, with prices for the finest stock obtainable.
